

2024

Afrotribes Summer Camp Impact Statement

The 2024 Afro Tribes Summer Camp was an extraordinary journey of youth engagement, cultural continuity, and social health, spanning six vibrant weeks from July 8th to August 16th. Growing from 35 participants last year to an inspiring 85 this year, the camp became a powerful hub of connection and learning, leaving a lasting impact on all involved. Language and storytelling celebrated their heritage, while dance and drama performances allowed their talents to shine. Debates and canvas art projects ignited critical thinking and self-expression, empowering the youth to find their voice.

“The 2024 Afro Tribes Summer Camp was not just a summer activity; it was a transformative experience, a testament to the power of community, culture, and the enduring spirit of Ubuntu. As alumni of the University of Regina, we are proud to continue this legacy of education and empowerment, inspiring the leaders of tomorrow”.

At the heart of the camp was the daily Ubuntu circle, where participants shared stories, built friendships, and fostered a deep sense of community. Immersed in the richness of African history and other cultures, including Indigenous traditions, the youth not only learned but also cultivated respect and appreciation for the diverse world around them.

Impact Snapshot

Participants

Employed Young Adults
included two U of R
students

Youth Volunteers

University of Regina alumni
Founders of Afrotribes Summer Camp

Victor Ejike, a graduate of the SCBSCN program, Class of 2024
Amarachi Ejike, an MSc Computer Science graduate, Class of 2017

Thank you

University of Regina , Equity,Diversity and Inclusion office for being one of the program sponsors