FGSR’s UR Indigenous Summer Research Institute Scholarship

Terms of Reference

Description: FGSR UR Indigenous Scholarship Summer Program is a research related program intended to provide undergraduate students interested in graduate studies at the University of Regina the opportunity to experience research. This program is open to all Canadian and international students.

This program will create greater awareness of graduate opportunities and provide support for prospective Indigenous graduate students. Students are expected stay on campus in residence for three weeks during the tenure of this program.

Area of Study: Unrestricted

Value: 15 awards of $3,000 each (plus accommodation and on campus meals)

Eligibility:
- Students must be in good standing with a minimum CGPA of 75% (or equivalent); be enrolled in an undergraduate program at a Canadian or international university; and must be registered in the semester before and after this summer program occurs
- Students must be in their third or fourth year of undergraduate studies
- Students must not register in any courses during the tenure of this program
- Students may not receive this funding more than twice during their undergraduate studies
- Students cannot be an NSERC USRA student in the same semester as this award

Application: Students must apply to FGSR. Included with their application should be the following:
- Undergraduate transcripts (unofficial or official) from their current university, dated no earlier than one month before application deadline
- A one page statement as to why they are interested in this program/opportunity
- One letter of support from a professor who has taught them in their undergraduate studies

Deadline to apply: April 30 of each year.

Selection: FGSR will select the recipients based on academics, their personal statement, as well as their letter of reference. If applicants are equally qualified, preference may be given to Indigenous students.

Payment: FGSR will process payment of the award to the recipient via direct deposit into the student’s bank account at the beginning/end of Program. Students must submit their banking information to Human Resources—Ad Hum Building, 4th floor.
