

March 21, 2014

With the passage of The Public Health Amendment Act (Howard's Law), Saskatchewan has become the first province in Canada to require the mandatory reporting of public buildings that are known to contain asbestos.

As part of its normal process to regularly review facilities that have asbestos in them, the University of Regina contracted Bersch & Associates Ltd. to conduct assessments of its buildings that were constructed prior to 1985. The purpose of the assessment was to identify and assess all suspected Asbestos Containing Materials (ACM) located within each facility and note any concerns relating to the ACM identified. The assessment is complete and our attached inventory of asbestos containing material is up-to-date. All asbestos found during the assessment process that may have posed risk has been safely and effectively managed. The remainder does not pose any risk as asbestos is safe if it remains undamaged or undisturbed in such a way that it does not release fibres into the air. Additionally, all spaces audited are now labeled and areas with asbestos containing material that have the potential to become friable continue to be monitored annually to ensure they do not pose a risk.

We understand that students, faculty, staff and members of the public may have questions about this issue and the safety regarding this kind of work on campus. To help answer your questions and find out more about ACM and where it is found in our buildings, please refer to the information located at:
