Safety Advisory

The use of seatbelts is mandatory under the Occupational Health and Safety Regulations for all employees that operate or are a passenger in a motor vehicle. At no time shall employees operate or be transported in a University of Regina vehicle unless it is equipped with the appropriate number of seatbelts for all occupants in the vehicle.

The Occupational Health and Safety Regulations states under: Transporting Workers 165(1): An employer or contractor shall ensure that no worker is transported on a vehicle or a unit of powered mobile equipment unless the worker is seated and secured by a seat-belt or other restraining device that is designed to prevent the worker from being thrown from the vehicle or equipment while the vehicle or equipment is in motion.

Please remember to Buckle Up when you operate or are a passenger in a motor vehicle.
