HOW CAN I STUDY ABROAD?

The University of Regina has several options for Study Abroad programs whereby students can experience a semester, summer, or academic year abroad.

GLOBAL STUDY
The Global Study program is an established bilateral partnership agreement that allows University of Regina students to swap places with students from partner Universities across the globe. Currently, the University of Regina has 227 active bilateral agreements that allow students to study in Asia, North America, South America, Europe, and the Oceanic countries.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE PROGRAM (ISEP)
The ISEP program is offered by a consortium of universities and gives University of Regina students access to 300 schools in 60 countries across the globe. Students accepted through this program pay their tuition to the University of Regina and their housing and meals to Luther College prior to departure for their exchange program.

NORTH2NORTH (N2N)
The N2N program provides University of Regina students with a unique Northern Arctic experience, allowing students to access various Arctic universities. This program also allows First Nations students the opportunity to learn more about the indigenous ways of knowing of the northern communities and territories.

CONSORTIUM FOR NORTH AMERICAN HIGHER EDUCATION COLLABORATION (CONAHEC)
This program consists of a consortium of North American Higher Education Collaboration which allows University of Regina students to access institutions in Canada, the United States and Mexico as well as selected members around the world. With access to 180 member institutions University of Regina students can open their world by having a study abroad experience at home in Canada or within North America.

NATIONAL STUDENT EXCHANGE PROGRAM (NSE)
This program consists of a consortium of universities in the United States, Canada, and US territories that gives students access to schools throughout the US, Canada, Guam, and the US Virgin Islands. Under this program, students have the option of paying fees to their home or host campus. This is a great way to study away and at home, especially for students who are not ready to be far away from family and friends.

FACULTY-LED STUDY TOURS OR SUMMER PROGRAMS
This program allows for faculty members to incorporate an international experiential learning component into a class. Additionally, for students not wanting to be away for long periods of time, they also have the option to attend creative, interactive summer short-term programs that are either hosted by partner schools or consortium schools from the National Student Exchange Program or the International Student Exchange Program.

GLOBAL INTERNSHIPS
This program is a faculty specific internship administered by Education, Kinesiology, Social Work, and Arts which allows students to gain academic credit by completing a 15 credit hour internship class abroad.

VOLUNTEER PROGRAMS
Volunteer programs allow students to receive international experience by volunteering abroad. These programs are primarily self-directed and UR International assist with visas and a pre-departure, cross cultural workshop.

For more information about any of these programs, please contact UR International Study Abroad at 1.306.337.2446, email study.abroad@uregina.ca, or visit www.uregina.ca/international/study-abroad.
