BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Walter Stewart is an investigative journalist and writer par excellence. He has the inquisitive mind, the blunt honesty, and more particularly, the nose that makes for a good reporter, in every sense of the word. His love of the search for some kind of truth has led him to delve into a diverse number of subjects: the high price of food, Crown Corporations, the history of the Loyalists in Canada, the Pickering Airport fiasco, Trudeau. In all, he has written eleven books, ghostwritten at least two, and edited a book on Canadian newspapers. He has worked for the Toronto Telegram, the Star Weekly magazine, Maclean's, the Toronto Star, the FP News Service in Ottawa, the Today Magazine in Toronto, The Toronto Sun, and Policy Options magazine, in a variety of capacities.

In addition to his investigative and historical writing, Stewart was Director of the School of Journalism at King's College, Halifax for two years, and Max Bell Professor at the University of Regina. He has lectured frequently, and appeared on radio and television.

Stewart, however, is not simply all work and no play. One only has to read his "Bosky Dell" columns for the Toronto Sun, or his murder mystery Right Church, Wrong Pew, to appreciate his lighter side. His correspondence can be quite hilarious and even his serious writing is never without a leavening of humour. Stewart obviously likes his work and doesn't let the allowable cynicism his work engenders interfere with his enjoyment of life. Joan, his wife, supports him in this last endeavour, as she does with his work.

This collection contains Stewart's published works, and for the books and some of the major articles he has written, the research files and publications used in their production as well. Of particular note is the early Maclean's material which Stewart rescued during one of his many times with the magazine, and the material on Maclean's during the tenure of Peter C. Newman. Much original and copied material exists in the files which is from Maclean's staff members other than Stewart; he was considered to be the magazine's repository for this information. The papers are very much limited to Stewart's professional life, with glimpses of his personal life appearing only very occasionally.

NOTE ON ARRANGEMENT: I have tried to adhere to Walter Stewart's own arrangement of materials, as well as his titles in every instance possible. Slight changes were made to clarify relationships of material, one to another.
