

Calculation of the BSW Admission GPA

Grade point average (GPA) for admission to the BSW program is calculated using the applicant's grades earned in their most recent 30 credit hours of approved post-secondary courses.

This includes courses from the University of Regina and other post-secondary institutions attended, and is not limited to successfully completed courses (i.e. grades in failed courses are included).

All grades from other post-secondary institutions are converted to the University of Regina's grading system for GPA calculation purposes.

The only instance in which a student's highest grades for a term are used is when the least recent term comprising the student's most recent 30 credit hours includes additional course credits that would bring the total beyond 30. See the Fall 2020 term in the Sample GPA Calculation below for reference.

Pre-SW Courses:

The 5 specific Pre-SW required courses (ENGL 100, INDG 100, PSYC 101, SOC 100 and SW 100) may or may not be included in the BSW Admission GPA. This depends on whether or not the courses are part of the student's most recent 30 credit hours.

Conditional Admission:

Students applying for conditional admission who have not yet attained 30 credit hours will have their BSW Admission GPA calculated using all approved post-secondary courses completed by the application deadline of January 15th. Conditionally admitted applicants must maintain a 70% GPA for full admission; therefore, the BSW Admission GPA will be re-calculated at the end of the Winter term using the applicant's most recent 30 credit hours.

University of Regina UGPA:

It is important to note that in addition to the 70% minimum BSW Admission GPA, applicants who have taken courses through the University of Regina are also required to have achieved a minimum U of R undergraduate grade point average (UGPA) of at least 60%. The UGPA is based on all undergraduate courses taken through the U of R.
