

Members of the campus community,

The University recognizes that students, faculty and staff may have questions about the outbreak of the Wuhan coronavirus which is believed to have originated in Wuhan, China in December. The virus, which can lead to pneumonia, has now been detected in people in several other countries, including a case in the United States, but not in Canada.

For anyone who may have travel plans that include China, the Government of Canada has issued a Level 2 Travel Advisory for Wuhan which recommends travellers to the area practice enhanced precautions. Visitors are being advised to avoid contact with sick people, live or dead animals, and animal markets.

Additional precautions and information for travellers to and from Wuhan are available at:

Health, Safety and Wellness is monitoring the situation in consultation with the appropriate health authorities, and will provide updates as required.
